RE: Continuing Education Courses and Resident Producer Continuing Education Requirements

The New Hampshire Insurance Department is extending the expiration date of all approved Continuing Education Courses set to expire on September 30, 2006. All currently approved courses will expire no earlier than December 31, 2006. Course credits awarded will remain the same.

The Department is also announcing a change to resident producer continuing education requirements. The objective of this change is to attain uniformity with the other member states of the National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC). Effective with all new licenses issued on or after January 1, 2007, all producers will be required to obtain a total of 24 Continuing Education Credits in each renewal cycle, which shall include at least 3 but not more than 10 credits in ethics. This is a reduction from 30 to 24, and the inclusion of the ethics requirement.

These Continuing Education requirements will be effective for current licenses, which expire on or after April 30, 2007. All Continuing Education requirements must be completed 60 days prior to the expiration date of the license.
